

Strenuous Fight Over Freight Rates Case Reaches Critical Juncture

Ottawa.—The battle over the Crown's Post Rate case administered by the Privy Council. When adjournment was deferred last week, there being no material part of the case of Saskatchewan and Alberta shippers, the case was dropped. Deputy Chief Commissioner Dine had expressed a doubt as to whether those provinces were fit for entry on this matter, and Chairman Macdonald had stated that he had a remark that he was probably in a minority.

The application before the board involves two distinct cases. There is the claim that the western export rates do not comply with the order of the board made in respect of last. It is out of this claim that the present hearings arose, but the time of the commission has been taken up with the admission of the shippers' right to be in the country related case as to whether the established rates were in compliance with the Crown's Post Rate case brought to force by the act passed by parliament last June. The provinces claim that the established rates should be reduced to the level of the shippers' rates, and that they are seeking to get such reduction made, before they can have the western rates added to those on the same subjects but at these low grain rates.

Overseas Settlement Scheme Is Criticized

British Women Claim Families Would Want Under Lead of Debt. London.—Criticism of the overseas settlement scheme advanced by the government in connection with the sale of the Canadian Pacific Railway has been intensified by the fact that the Canadian government has not adopted by the industrial world's committee of the settlement of the British women's families.

The principal suggestion in the report is that the scheme might be met with opposition on the part of the women in Great Britain.

They families with between 10,000 (1885) and 4,000 (1922) the report states, are likely to receive little or no aid in settling and living. It is also stated that the scheme is not a self-sufficient one, and that the women would be very likely to fail money to pay for the cost of the Canadian government. The report suggested that it would be very difficult to find money to pay for the cost of the Canadian government. The report suggested that it would be very difficult to find money to pay for the cost of the Canadian government.
